Pastor Vincent Goard and the ministry staff of Faith Deliverance Temple, Inc. do not endorse or encourage all the content of the movies we review in these bible studies or suggest movies as a replacement for personal devotion and regular bible study. However, Faith Deliverance Temple, Inc. does endorse and encourage daily prayer, devotion and Bible study on a personal and individual basis (2Tim2:15). Only a firm foundation in the Word of God will help you to rightly discern the parallels of common truth in the things you see in every day life and evil deceptions of our enemy (2Cor2:11, Matt24:24, Prov3:5-6, Prov11:20) © 2011

*Join us for our next
Blockbuster Bible study
Tue, November 22 :*

As the film opens, we meet Sawyer, an introverted young man who would rather be tinkering with his gadgets than playing outside with kids his own age. His closest friend is his cousin Kyle, a new military recruit who is mere days away from shipping out on his first deployment. Sawyer, whose father left him and his mother, Lorraine, is fearful of again being alone. Kyle tries to be reassuring, but Sawyer's life is marked by fractured relationships, and assurances can feel shallow. How have fractured (childhood) relationships affected your life? What affect, if any, did it have your character? What fear did it leave your with? What do the following verses speak to this issue Ps 27:10, Isaiah 40:11, John 14:16-18

Dolphin Tale does not shy away from confronting the difficulties of life – aquatic or human. Director Charles Martin Smith, in an interview, notes that everyone has personal issues that drive drama, but the focus here is not on the loss, but the power of love, family, and creativity to help us through tough times. How does James 1:2-5 instruct us to handle the difficulties of life? Do you think focus (how you view a situation) affects how you deal with it? How so?
